HUMANITY OF MAN.

An Eloquent Address by Mr. A. Davidson

At a Nanaimo Relief Entertainment, Chilliwhack.

At the concert given at Chilliwhack on the evening of the 19th inst., for the benefit of the Nanaimo sufferers, Mr. A. Davidson delivered an eloquent address, for which we make room in our columns. The programme was as follows: Anthem, 'Sing, Oh Heaven be joyful, Oh earth;' recitation, "Thanatopsis," J. F. Wilkinson; duet, "The Pilot Brave," Miss McCutcheon and J. Henderson; solo, "A Hundred Fathoms Deep," J. Henderson; recitation, "The Collier's Little Jim," Miss McCutcheon; trio, "Whispering Hope," Misses Reece, Henderson and Kipp; part song, "Row, Boatmen, Row." Mr. Davidson spoke as follows:

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:—A few days ago I received an invitation from the Odd Fellows' lodge of this place to make an address upon this occasion. I need scarcely say that I felt highly flattered by such invitation, but without any affectation of modesty I may say that these gentlemen have kindly overestimated my poor abilities. However, as the character of the occasion would not permit me to decline, I have in the meantime indulged in a few reflections which I will submit for your consideration, promising that the remarks I have to make "are not intended," if I may use the words of the eloquent Burke, "to abide the test of a captious criticism, but of a sober and even forgiving examination; they will not be armed at all points for battle, but dressed to visit those who are willing to give a peaceful entrance to truth."

It is a trite and truthful saying that man is born to trouble. The cares, disappointments and anxieties of life, which the generality of mankind have to endure in the great struggle for existence, become commonplace and ordinary, from their frequent occurrence and universality of our experiences. Like the ever-changing views of the kaleidoscope, they vary in their phases according to the varying turns of circumstances and seldom inten-ify into real sorrows. But occasionally some great calamity occurs, in which death and destruction go hand in hand, whilst weeping and wailing pain and anguish follow in their train. And as our sympathies for the suffering victims go out to the afflicted, we realize how trivial indeed have been our petty vexations and misfortunes in comparison with those of our doubly afflicted neighbors.

The terrible event that has so lately occurred in our neighboring town has awakened our warmest sympathies with the sufferers, and this occasion has been called forth at the instance of the noble order of Odd Fellows, to aid in alleviating, as far as pecuniary aid can alleviate, the urgent needs of the afflicted survivors.

It is a blessed and beautiful trait in the human character, that deep down in our better natures lie tender chords of human sympathies, which, when touched by the misfortunes of our fellows, vibrate and thrill through every fibre of the body and faculty of the soul. No other race of animals possess this trait. A community of interest for mutual protection instinctively leads them to mutual association, but sympathy and charity are strangers to their being. And it appears to me, that as the evolution of society advances through the higher grades of civilization and intelligence, this distinguishing trait of human character becomes more intensified and elaborated. Semi-barbarous nations have less of it than the civilized, and savage nations have still less. Note the indifference of the Chinese to the sufferings of their fellow countrymen; when they become sick and helpless, and consequently useless, they are turned out to die, as we have had instances of in this place; and I have frequently had occasion to observe among the Indians of our northern coast the stolid indifferance they manifest to the misfortunes of their fellows.

In our readings of ancient history we do not learn much of ancient benevolences, and beneficent institutions for the relief of human suffering seem to have been rare. On the contrary, we are made familiar with cruel and desolating wars and persecutions waged by the strong to oppress weak, or for political and territorial aggrandisement. We read of dungeons and gibbets, of faggots and fires, of thumb-screws and racks, instruments of exquisite torture for the suppression of free thought and free speech, and by which instrumentalities civil and religious liberty were for centuries kept in abeyance by the arrogance of despots and the intolerance of a dominant priesthood.

If we turn to the consideration of our own times what a different picture is presented. Hospitals, and asylums, schools, colleges and universities of learning, reformatory institutions, benevolent societies, mutual and societies, &c., &c., are the machinery set in motion by the advanced thought and the humanitarian sentiments of the present age; "their sins overtop us as the roads they take," but all having their springs of action in the kindly sentiments of the human heart. And yet we are told that man is by nature wholly depraved and fiercely wicked. Well, it would appear that some men are, as some horses and dogs are desperately vicious; but they are not typical of the race, nor are those upon society, excrescences on the body politic, but rather products of our common humanity that must be endured, and if possible reformed. I have an abiding faith in human nature, in its potentialities and possibilities, in the kindly sympathies and refined and refining sensibilities of man's being, that become eliminated and intensified as the ages roll on. I have little accordance with the idea that man, in and of himself, can do nothing—that like the clay in the hands of the potter he is a passive being, and can only be moved by forces extraneous to himself. Our tender sympathies, our deep-seated affections, our glowing loves, our virtuous impulses, are in and of ourselves, the better parts of our being, as the luscious flavors of the mellow fruit or the sweet perfume of the rose are in and of themselves the better parts, indeed the essential qualities of their natures, and without which they would not be what they are. Take from man those beautiful innate qualities and he would no longer be human but animal in his nature and instincts, as the fewer he possesses of these the nearer he approaches the lower orders of the animal creation.

As in the evolutions of the past, the scientist recognises a slow but certain improvement in organic forms in the mineral, vegetable and animal kingdoms until at length this beautiful world has, through countless ages, become fitted up for the abode of man—the capsheaf of creation—so may we recognize in the history of our race analogous laws of evolution that are slowly but surely propelling us onward to higher and still higher developments in the social, moral, political and intellectual relationships of society; and these developments will continue to go on. Nature never steps backward.

Some moral philosophers place the Golden Age in the past. The halcyon days of man's moral purity, according to them, were before the unfortunate episode of the Garden of Eden, which "brought death and sin into the world with all their woes." To please me better to consider the Golden Age as yet to come—but as an elaboration of this line of thought might lead to doctrinal disputation, I will pursue it no further.

Still the great fact of our experiences stands out in bold relief—preeminently so over any of the periods of the past—that this is a humanitarian age. There is more benevolence, more active practical charity, more good fellowship—I had almost said Odd Fellowship (which amounts to the same thing), more justice, more liberty, more security and a better understanding and appreciation of our mutual relations and obligations, than there ever were in the world before—the sneers of the cynic and the pratings of the pessimist to the contrary notwithstanding. Society is crystalizing itself into one grand brotherhood of individuals and States; local jealousies and sectional animosities are rapidly dying out; important lessons of social science are being learned and acted upon; we are becoming to realize, what ancient peoples scarcely conceived of, that the best interests of the individual are most intimately connected with the best interest of the whole, and that to build ourselves up, it is not necessary to pull down our neighbor. A broad Catholic Christianity—not the Christianity of theological schools nor the dogmas of denominations and sects, but the true precepts of the Great Teacher who taught as never man taught, are slowly but surely permeating the masses and leavening the whole lump of our social relationships.

As in the still summer morning the first awakened bird utters his solitary notes, timidly rippling the silence, and is not long alone, for quickly the melodious throb begins to beat from every tree top and soon the whole rapturous grove gushes and palpitates into song; even so are the tree tops of human life filled with slumbering melodies, with silent symphonies, with latent charities. And as the first faint cry of distress strikes upon our ears, we recognize at once the note of our kind, and as the electric clicking conveys the mournful wail over a continent, over a world, ten thousand thousand human hearts throbbing with high response take up the sad refrain and echo back their notes of sympathy and fellow feeling, whilst thousands of generous hands are outstretched to proffer material aid. Note the self-sacrificing efforts of the rescuing parties, on the occasion of the late disaster, who took their lives in their hands and descended into the treacherous pit even whilst the fires raged and whilst the after-damp fiend was still holding watch and ward over its stark and stricken victims. Note the spontaneous outbursts of sympathy and aid from neighboring towns, not only of our own province and Dominion, but of other nationalities; note all these things and then exclaim if you will that man is totally depraved and desperately wicked. A great authority has said after enumerating many of the Christian virtues—"but the greatest of these is charity." So intimately blended are these exalted sentiments in the relationships of individuals and society, with the great end and aim of our being, viz., human happiness, that the faithful observance of them in our intercourse with our fellow men brings with it its own reward. Hence the aphorisms—"to be virtuous is to be happy," "virtue is its own reward," it is better to give than to receive," &c., acquire their force from their truthfulness. Charity indeed covereth a multitude of sins. In its faithful exercise we are but carrying out the highest behests of our moral nature. Without it we are—but as "tinkling symbols and empty shows." I cannot conclude this brief address more appropriately than by quoting from Pollock's "Course of Time" the following beautiful lines on human happiness:

"True happiness had no locality,
No tones provincial, no peculiar garb,
Where duty went she went.
And went with meekness, charity and love
Where'er a tear was dried; a bleeding heart
Bound up; a bruised spirit with the dews
Of sympathy annointed, or a pang
Of honest suffering soothed; or injury
Repented of as oft by love forgiven;
Where'er an evil passion was subdued,
Or virtue's feeble ember fanned;
Where'er a sin was heartily abjured and left;
Where breathed a pious prayer, or wished a pious wish;
There was a high and holy spot, a place of sacred light,
A most religious fane;
Where happiness descending sat and smiled

THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

To the Editor of The Times:

Sir,—By what authority do the present trustees of the Victoria Public Schools exercise the arbitrary power they do in the matter of admitting pupils? Was the right given to them by those who elected them, or is it a power they have assumed? Is it not a fact that the Trustees have refused admittance to children whose parents have been ratepayers for years, and who have grown up in the city, and even in the schools, to many others to our knowledge, who have only resided in the city a few months? Is it not also

THE PACIFIC MAIL SERVICE.

It may now safely be stated that the Canadian Pacific Ocean service is an accomplished fact. The Abyssinia is ploughing her way through the placid waters of the Pacific Ocean, at full speed, towards this coast. She is expected to reach Vancouver on the 13th of June. Her arrival will be hailed as the harbinger of another new and fresh epoch in the history of this province as well as that of Canada. The pioneer vessel of the line, we are informed, is to be followed at stated intervals by others, so that a regular service will be maintained.

The question of direct steam connection between America and Australia has been fully discussed by the press across the borders as well as by Canadians, and especially so on this coast. The Canadian Pacific has been spotted as the disturbing element in consequence of the determination it has evinced for securing a share of the Occidental and Oriental trade. Already efforts have been made to induce Imperial aid by way of a subsidy, without which, supplemented by a considerable one from Canada, it was believed the line could not be operated. The present service, plying between San Francisco, New Zealand and New South Wales receives but a petty grant, $1,500 a month from the United States government. The trade of that country with the colonies is yearly increasing and already exceeds an annual sum of $20,000,000, the exports forming at least four-fifths of that sum. The subject was debated at the late Colonial Conference, whose delegates were offered exceedingly reasonable inducements to travel over the Canadian Pacific Railway—free transportation. The Oceanic Steamship Company, of San Francisco, equally enterprising in this respect, offered the delegates free transportation through the United States and to Sydney. We glean from the discussion going on that the main question for consideration by the Colonists is the transportation of the mails and the time necessary to do so from Sydney to London. Their three principal services now are two by way of the Suez Canal, and the one by San Francisco, by all of which the contract time is forty days from Sydney to London. The present San Francisco service is the quickest that there has ever been by this route, the steamers on the Pacific running with the regularity of clockwork. On more than one occasion the colonial mails have been delivered in London in less than thirty-three days from Auckland, and thirty-seven days from Sydney. But with the advance of the age, the colonials will naturally desire to improve upon their present arrangement, and will be inclined to give the preference to the quickest possible service, whether it be Canadian or American. The present San Francisco service can be materially shortened, but this will involve the payment of higher subsidies, to which the colonials will not object. The time from Auckland to San Francisco can be reduced to nineteen days—in fact the present steamers running on the line have several times accomplished the distance within that time, though not compelled to do so. There is also every prospect of the overland service between San Francisco and New York being very shortly reduced to five days, which would make twenty-one days to New York. Adding seven days across the Atlantic, we get the New Zealand mails from Auckland delivered in London in thirty-one days. With the newer and faster steamers the Atlantic trip may reasonably be expected to further reduction of another day. As regards transit, it is claimed with a great deal of reason by the Canadian Pacific that during the winter months the service will be somewhat longer time occupied in covering the distance from land to land. A correspondent writing from San Francisco on the subject is of the opinion that the business men of that city "should retain this mail service, both on account of our trade connections as well as for the amount of travel that it brings. It is especially important for the Pacific coast. The government of New Zealand, which bears the greater portion of the expense, is favorably disposed toward a continuance of the existing arrangements. But they have two grounds of complaint wherein they think they are hardly fairly treated. One is that their service is comparatively ignored by the United States government, which only contributes $20,000 annually in return for the benefits that this country receives by trade and travel; and the other is the high tariff on wool, which excludes the colonial product. A general reduction of the wool tariff is not asked, what is required being a reduction on certain high-class grades of wool that are but little grown in this country."

AN IMPORTANT MISSION.

Sir Charles Tupper has returned to Ottawa from a visit to Washington, believed to be a very important one. By some it is said that the mission was a double one; his flying trip to New York being with the object of inviting capitalists to embark in the manufacture of iron, for which his new tariff has paved the way; and his Washington mission was to follow up the negotiations for a settlement of the fisheries dispute, and also to feel the pulse of the American authorities on the renewal of a reciprocity treaty. Sir Charles was well primed before he left Ottawa, with figures and statistics concerning the Canadian-American trade. In addition to these he brought with him the Canadian living magazine—Mr. George Johnson, a well known and capable journalist, who also was loaded with facts and figures in regard to our trade, navigation, lakes and rivers. The consensus of public opinion in the east favors the theories above stated in connection with the late visit across the borders. So far the iron duties have not found many supporters in the press. It is confidently expected that several years must elapse before the industry can be developed sufficiently to supply the wants of Canada and in the meantime every piece of iron used in the manufactures will be heavy taxed. This time the farmers and the manufacturers are in the same boat and some sanguine persons believe, or affect to believe, that the Conservatives will not stand it. Whether the limit of Conservative patience has yet been reached, or can be reached, remains to be seen. At any rate Sir Charles Tupper seems to be a statesman who, having made up his mind to a policy, will insist on his followers adopting it, and if on this occasion they intend to rebel they will considerably astonish a great many people.

The Civil and Military Gazette of India confirms the report of the defeat of the Ameer's troops by the Shinwaris. In more recent battles the rebels met with partial success.

The China tea trade is reported to be unprecedentedly bad. The Hankow Tea Guild, which largely controls the market, has ordered the suspension of business for a week in consequence of the low prices offered by foreign buyers.

The Queen of Denmark, having traveled incognito, is visiting her daughter, the Duchess of Cumberland, at the asylum at Dobling. The condition of the Duchess delays her restoration to sanity. Her generally enfeebled state causes grave anxiety.

The Royal Commission appointed to inquire into the charges against the British War Office of jobbery in making of contracts and in the purchasing of defective weapons, has prepared a report which exonerates the officials individually, but advises numerous administrative changes.

The Marquis of Salisbury, addressing the Constitutional Club, said the non-Conformists had placed their machinery at the disposal of the Liberals. Every one of their chapels was a centre of radicalism. The labor organizations had also fallen into the hands of the Liberals.

A vessel, the H. Chisholm, is ashore on Pancake Shoals, Lake Superior, in Canadian waters, fifteen miles northeast of Whitefish Point. Owing to stringent Canadian wrecking laws assistance cannot be sent from here, nor can American steamers render any aid without being subject to a severe penalty.

A monument is to be erected as a memorial to the gallant Black Watch. The spot chosen is near the river Tay, Aberfeldy, Perthshire, Scotland, where this renowned corps was first embodied. The Marquis of Breadalbane has taken the matter in hand. Subscriptions will be asked for from all sections of the Empire.

The announcement has been made in the Senate by the Hon. Mr. Abbott that the government will assume $2,190,000 of Montreal's debt, incurred in connection with harbor improvements. Victoria is anxious to hear about her harbor improvements. It is stated that the supplementary estimates will contain a handsome sum for this work.

Says the London Advertiser: On general principles we are opposed to the bonus system, believing it to be vicious. But there are occasions when a certain amount of give-and-take is judicious. Such an occasion is now when London has an opportunity of securing a rolling mill that will employ at least 100 men and possibly a great many more, on the simple conditions that the place be exempted from taxation for ten years and supplied with free water.

The Anti-Poverty Society, when it shall have succeeded in abolishing poverty from the earth, might turn its attention to another inequality of an anomalous and painful character. There are said to be in Great Britain 500,000 more women than men—a condition of thing which calls for the acute reasoning of political economists to account for and to find a proper solution. Poverty is undoubtedly a difficult enemy to dislodge, but when it comes to women we give it up!

It is reported that Lord Lansdowne has declined Lord Salisbury's offer of the Paris Embassy in succession to Lord Lyons. The Governor-General's term is not up till the fall of 1888, and he doubtless has good reasons for refusing to give up his post at Ottawa before his five years' service is completed. It is scarcely possible that the British authorities will keep the Paris Embassy open for him, though service in Canada has before now been looked upon as a passport to honor on the Continent. But then every Governor-General does not develope so well as did Dufferin, who, since he left Canada, has occupied the chief diplomatic posts in Europe, at tickish times, and now enjoys the most lucrative position in the gift of the Crown—the Vice-Royalty of India.

The superiority of Russian iron, for some purposes, is a tradition of old times. During generations past it has found a market in both England and the United States, in competition with the best native product. Well, notwithstanding the fact that Russia is an old iron-producing country, the government still thinks it good policy to help the iron industry by giving further protection. It appears, therefore, that with regard to this important industry old Russia is doing very much as new Canada is now doing. The advance in duties is along the whole line, from ore to machinery and other forms of finished manufactures.

THE TOWN OF HOPE.

A Beautifully Located Town on the Banks of the Fraser River.

[From an Occasional Correspondent.]

Serene, sequestered calm retreat,
Above the burst of swelling flood,
Environs strong, as nature's fort,
Like towering sentinels have stood
Guarding their treasures rich and free
From outward harm or enemy.

Hope is a beautifully situated town on the beach of the majestic Fraser river, surrounded by the most picturesque and romantic mountain scenery. Snowcapped peaks are ever in view, relieving the weary eye in the long days of brilliant sunshine. It may be said of this lovely and quiet retreat, as of "Mount Zion" of old, "beautiful for situation; the joy of the whole earth," (in appearance). If parties with ample means desire to enlarge and improve in the line of art, where nature has richly and lavishly adorned, they could not possibly make a better selection for an outlet to their monetery wealth, and scope for the gratification of an intelligent refined taste, than the town of Hope. Here the artistic eye is ever feasting on the varied scenes of rugged mountains, verdant slopes and shady vales. The walks and drives meandering through natural groves, by murmuring rills, and gurgling streams are most inviting. Here picnic and excursion parties, from the cities and towns, could most enjoyably spend their hours for leisure and sight-seeing. The most prominent and leading characteristic of the residents of this little town is generosity. No appeal worthy of consideration, presented to this people, that does not meet a hearty and prompt response.

Astonishing Success.

It is the duty of every person who has used Boschee's German Syrup to let its wonderful qualities be known to their friends in curing Consumption, severe Coughs, Croup, Asthma, Pneumonia, and in fact all throat and lung diseases. No person can use it without immediate relief. Three doses will relieve any case, and we consider it the duty of all Druggists to recommend it to the poor, dying consumptive, at least to try one bottle, as 80,000 dozen bottles were sold last year, and no one case where it failed was reported. Such a medicine as the German Syrup cannot be too widely known. Ask your druggist about it. Sample bottles to try, sold at 10 cents. Regular size, 75 cents. Sold by all Druggists and Dealers, in the United States and Canada. *

"DOMESTIC."

ITS CLAIM.

The "Domestic" is the best Sewing Machine ever made. It is best in plan and design, giving superior results in practical work; best in workmanship—the fitting, finishing and hardening of the working parts being most careful and exact, without the useless polishing of prominent non-wearing parts for the purpose of catching the eye. It has the best wood-work ever used on any sewing machine. No other sewing machine can show as good a record.

These facts are recognized

By its competitors everywhere in their endeavor to secure patronage by claiming equal or like degrees and qualities of merit.

"The best is always the cheapest," and the "Domestic" has proven itself to be the best.

ON A TRAINING SHIP.

How Uncle Sam Educates Sailors for the United States Navy.

We happened to arrive at the training ship at a very opportune moment on Thursday. There was to be a lecture on international law in the war college, which had brought over many interested listeners from Newport, and the weekly drill of all the boys in the class was taking place on the lawn before the college building, while the New Hampshire band, established beneath a spreading beech hard by, breathed martial music for the performing regiment. It was a fine fall morning, the water blue and the sky cloudless, but the air was chilly, and the few spectators in carriages drew their wraps closely about them, and now and then gave an involuntary shiver. To and fro over the green sward tramped the boyish rank and file in their white apparel, the sailor caps set jauntily upon their close cropped hair and the rifles carried over their shoulders with careful precision, as they marched by twos, by fours, by platoons, went through the manual of arms, and performed all sorts of military evolutions. To our unsophisticated eyes, their movements were marvels of grace and precision, and we were not a little grieved to hear one of the trig young army officers who were looking on critically observe that it was very apparently the navy, and not the army, represented there. At noon the drill was over, and the troops filed through the armory, depositing their guns as they went, and returned to the ship, where dinner was presently served. We followed them, climbing up the plank gangway that led up the side of the hull, and found ourselves on the uppermost deck of the five which the old vessel boasts, for it has almost as many stories as a New York apartment house. Every thing was as trim and neat as constant care and work could make it. The planks in the flooring of the deck were white as white could be; no speck of dust or dirt was anywhere to be found, and the exquisite order of naval management pervaded all. A sentry in the uniform of the United States marine corps and white cotton gloves that didn't fit walked up and down before the captain's quarters, and various officers, in braided fatigue jackets and becoming caps were coming and going in discharge of their various duties. Below, on the second deck, the boys were at dinner. They sat at long tables, row after row, displaying as good appetites as any set of land lubbers could boast, and, as this was the occasion of the departure of the commissary, it was being celebrated by an unusual feast. Each embryo tar had a large supply of roast turkey, with potatoes, white and sweet, and for dessert a bunch of grapes and a paper bag of candy, delicacies which were duly appreciated. They had not the sort of manners at table that one looks for in Newport society, these gay young sailors, for the knives went into their mouths with alarming frequency, and they ate with an eagerness and rapidity which "Don't" and kindred books of etiquette would denounce severely. But they were well and strong and hearty, and, perhaps, enjoyed their dinner quite as much as if it had been served on delicate china and eaten with gold forks and knives in the most elegant and approved fashion. On this deck they sleep, in hammocks of canvas, slung in long rows from iron hooks set in the beams overhead. During the day the hammocks are neatly lashed up and piled away on the upper deck. At nine o'clock each even ng every boy finds his own hammock, slings it, arranges his blankets and coverings (the poor things are not allowed the luxury of a pillow) and puts himself to sleep; and each morning at 5:30 he rises, and is allowed half an hour in which to dress himself, take down his swinging bed and lash it up, and to dispose of the cup of cocoa that is all the breakfast he gets until eight o'clock.

The routine on board is very strict and regular. Every soul in the class has his appointed duties at drill, naval and military, and in the school room, and he is held strictly to account for them. The life is pleasant, if a little monotonous, and most of the boys profess a great deal of sorrow when they are forced to leave the good old ship which has been their home for six long months, even while they rejoice at the prospect of going to sea. Bad boys are discharged as soon as their evil doing is found out. There are dark cells in which they are imprisoned for various offenses.

Food Consumed in Paris.

The annual consumption in Paris of various kinds of food which can be closely controlled by the registers of the octroi was during the year 146,825 tons—an increase of 446 tons over the previous year. Of pork 148 tons had been consumed less, while the consumption of horseflesh, with a total of 3,830 tons, had augmented 337 tons, as compared with 1884; the average price of this last-named commodity is sixty centimes a kilo, while the meat of asses and mules commands about seventy centimes. Of poultry and game the aggregate consumption was 25,044 tons—a slight diminution as compared with the year before. The quantity of fish, etc., amounted to 25,631 tons—a slight augmentation, more particularly in oysters. The consumption of butter and eggs has fallen off by nearly 160 tons, which decrease, so far as butter is concerned, may readily be accounted for by the greater use of margarine.—London Spectator.

—The Rr dgeton (Me.) News contains the following curious announcement: "Dr. Wesley and wife (nee Mrs. Volney Barker) visit in this town and Otisfield." In times like these, when there are not men enough in New England to furnish more than one woman in three with a husband, it is a mighty lucky girl who is born a Mrs.—Boston Post.

—Near Hawkinsville, Ga., recently, a cow with crumpled horns was licking her calf, and by some means the calf got its head in the circle of the horns and could not get away. The cow became excited, and in her efforts to get rid of the calf, strangled it and broke her own neck.

The Alaskan's Riches.

Alaskan Indians do not reckon wealth by the amount of money or gold a person possesses, but rate a man as worth so many blankets. A government blanket sells in the stores everywhere throughout the country at the nominal price of $4. It is never more, never less. If an Indian gets hold of $20 and desires to save it, he buys five blankets and adds them to the store he already possesses. An Indian who owns 2,000 blankets is immensely wealthy, and is looked upon as a nabob by the poor members of his tribe. This is the currency of the realm among the Indians, and is recognized by the whites as well in trading with them.—Lieut. H. T. Monahan in Brooklyn Eagle.

ANCIENT ISRAEL IN IRELAND.

Did the Jews Contribute to the Population a Great Many Years Ago?

Respecting the Anglo-Israel mania, a self-evident and undeniable proof of an early settlement of Israelitish tribes in the United Kingdom is afforded by names of towns, of a nature which historians as well as ethnologists admit. Everybody will agree that Dover, for instance, is nothing else than a dialectical form of the locality Debir (Joshua xiii, 26). Edinburgh is no doubt the Eden town, and, in fact, there is an Edenic view from that town. Eboracum (York) is either the town of Eber or else Ebras, "the blessed town," with a Latin termination. But let us take London, whose derivation is still doubtful; as a Hebrew name we shall find it to be Lan-Dan, "the dwelling of Dan." Old London was, therefore, inhabited by the Danites (perhaps a part of them went over to Den-mark, although not yet claimed by the Danes).

In the name of Dublin is most likely to be found a reversed form, that name seeming to be Dublan, the dwelling of Dub or Dob. This word, which means usually in Hebrew a bear, could dialectically mean a wolf (hardened from Zeeb). The wolf represents the tribe of Benjamin (Genesis xlix, 27), consequently a part of the Benjamites settled in Dublin, and that perhaps in the time of Jeremiah, who, it is known, came over to Ireland, married an Irish princess, and brought over a copy of the law, which is now buried in the Mount Tara (from Thorah, the law). The tribal characteristic of "ravening as a wolf" still continues to mark the descendants. It is not unlikely that Phœnicians settled also in England, which has long been suspected from the frequently employed word Bal as a prefix in Celtic localities. Could not Sydenham mean "the home of the Sidonians"?—A Neubauer in Notes and Queries.

Interviewing Henry Ward Beecher.

There are probably but few newspaper reporters in this city that have not interviewed Henry Ward Beecher. The Plymouth pastor enjoys great popularity among the reporters, for he is accessible, genial, and, as a rule, talkative. He is always ready to engage in a harmless bit of chaff with the newspaper men, but he will not brook insolence. The last mentioned fact was recently impressed upon the alleged mind of a swaggering youngster who said that he represented a Brooklyn paper. A rumor that Mr. Beecher was dead got started in some unaccountable manner and spread like wildfire. Reporters by the score hurried to Mr. Beecher's house and were there confronted by the famous preacher hale and hearty. After a while along came a young man who said to Mr. Beecher with an impudent grin that he had been sent by the city editor of The Brooklyn —— "to find out whether Beecher was alive or dead."

"Well," said the Plymouth pastor, "I suppose you know who I am?"

"Oh, yes," answered the fellow pertly, "but I would like to have it directly from you that you are not dead."

"Ah," murmured the stalwart pastor as he laid a heavy hand on the funny young man's coat collar. The next instant the young man was held up in the air and shaken as a dog would shake a rawhide doll. Mr. Beecher set him down on the sidewalk not any too gently and quietly remarked, "Now, you can go to your city editor and tell him that you have received actual proof that I am alive."—New York Times.

A New Heredity Needed.

All wise reform must commence with recognizing the fact of heredity, and that by that law human ills are multiplied, and by it they may be diminished. It will do little good to work for individuals here and there. Such conditions must be created as shall make a new heredity possible. That cannot be accomplished without improving the environment of those to be reached. If men live in good houses, drink pure water, are accustomed to frequent sight and contact with those who are worthy of honor, have given to them the inspirations which are essential to the best development, the result will be manifested in the next generation. The generation following the French revolution was distinguished by such an epidemic of nervous diseases as had never been known in French history. It was the result of the terrific strain upon mind and heart and nerve of those delirious years.—Amory H. Bradford in Andover Review.

A Mysterious Society "Man."

A Boston man writes from Paris to a friend: "You know, of course, the exceedingly breezy volumes of descriptions of society in the European capitals, written by a certain mysterious and exceedingly outspoken Count Paul Vasili, that have appeared? Well, I have found out the identity of this mysterious 'Count Paul.' It is none other than Mme. Juliette Adam, the versatile and vivacious directress of The Nouvelle Revue, whose salon is the center of all literary Paris. She has been absent a good deal of late, and—well, when a Parisian editor wrote to ask Mme. for an article the other day, she inadvertently sent him an unpublished manuscript of Count Paul Vasili. The editor charged her at once with being the 'man' whom all Europe was speculating about, and she sent him an answer which dodges without denying."—New York Sun.

Purpose of the Ballet.

Twelve-year-old Miss—The opera was very long, wasn't it, mamma?

Mamma—Yes, daughter, and very stylish.

Miss—The ballet girls don't sing, do they, mamma?

Mamma—No daughter.

Miss—Why do they have the ballet then, mamma?

Papa—To make the opera as broad as it is long, daughter. Don't ask any more questions.—Washington Critic.

Second Hand Gravestones.

Buffalo has a citizen who deals in second hand gravestones. He buys old ones, erases the letters and engraves new inscriptions to order. "Lots of people seem to want to sell," he is reported as saying, "and plenty of others are willing to buy when they can get a good article so cheap."

Women as Clerks.

A citizen who knows Wall street, informs us that women are very popular as clerks and copyists in that neighborhood, because employers are not afraid of their divulging the secrets of the shop. They can be trusted better than can be the ambitious male employes not to give away "points."—Public Opinion.

Mme. Isabel, the famous Bond street milliner, was a graduate of Girton; another successful milliner was known as Lady Granville Gordon before she became a London milliner.

Victoria seems to be their bete noir, and for this season they will not be seen here. They were put to some expense in the way of printing &c., which was cheerfully paid.

—The Calgary Tribune reports glanders as very prevalent amongst horses in the Northwest. It prevails largely in the neighborhood of Prince Albert, Battle River and Edmonton. In some instances the unfortunate animals have been shot. The disease has secured so strong a hold that grave fears are entertained for the entire stock in that section of country.

—Boating Suits at Jeffree's.

Grouse Shooting.

The charge against Mr. W. H. Adams of shooting grouse out of season, was heard in the Provincial Court to-day by Mr. E. Johnson, and after considerable evidence had been taken, the case was dismissed. Mr. Adams testified that he did not shoot any grouse. One bird was killed, but by whom is unknown.

Hotel Arrivals.

At the Orientals: H N Rich, E A Wadhams, J B Lurr, Ladner's; D R Lord, Vancouver.

Severe shocks of earthquake were felt in Mexico last Sunday and throughout Arizona on Monday. It extended eastwards to Texas.

The Minstrels are Coming.

Mr. Charles Holton, business manager for I. W. Baird's mammoth minstrels, is in town, making arrangements for the appearance of the troupe here on the 6th and 7th of June. The company, which is now on the road from the east, comprises thirty people, including Lew Benedict, Charles Goodyear, Cool Burgess, Johnny Mack, Billy Conway and other old-timers. The Nashville Times says: "It is the best minstrel show that has visited this city for some time. There was more genuine fun and less of the obscenity business than usual. The musical features were excellent. The vocal selections were well rendered, and the hand bell ringing, by five members of the company, was a novel and pleasing performance. Lew Benedict, one of the most popular end men in the country, was a show in himself. His great speech on 'Ethical Culture' was one of the hits of the evening."

Going Into Milling.

The report reaches us from the east that the Canadian Pacific will commence purchasing and handling grain this fall, thus giving the settlers the benefits of two markets. Mills of enormous capacity will be erected at Keewatin, on Lake of the Woods east of Winnipeg. All grain milled will consequently reach the east via the main system of the C. P. R., thus precluding the possibility of this trade being diverted into American channels. The great Ogilvy firm of Montreal who have hitherto enjoyed a practical monopoly in the Northwest will be treated as friendly competitors. The water power at Rat Portage is one of the finest in the world, even excelling that of Minneapolis. In Winnipeg the fuel question is a serious one for the millers. Not so however, at Rat Portage, where there is a perpetual supply of water from the Lake of the Woods.

Rev. J. E. Starr.

The Rev. J. E. Starr, on his retirement from the Berkely Street Methodist Church, Toronto, was presented with an illuminated address by the congregation and a purse of gold, besides a gold watch and chain for Mrs. Starr. The reverend gentleman above refered to and his family are now en route for this city, where it is expected he will arrive about the middle of June. He will be pastor of the Pandora Street church, as successor to the Rev. Mr. Pemiral, who has joined the Presbyterian church of Canada.

Another Correction.

In our issue of last evening it was stated that Mr. Carmichael was the sole representative of Messrs. Jas. O'Brien & Co., in British Columbia. In justice to Mr. Langelier, who is the traveling representative of that house, we may state, that he handles an extensive line of hats, caps, furs, gents' furnishings, etc., a different branch of business to that represented by Mr. Carmichael. The latter gentleman confines his attention to ready made clothing. The firm are fortunate in having two such pushing representatives in the Pacific province.

San Francisco's Generosity.

The employees of the Sierra Buttes mine (California) have added $46 to their original contribution of $200 to the Nanaimo relief fund. The amount subscribed at the office of John Rosenfeld on Wednesday last reached $11,497.75. This sum has been offered without the least solicitation. It is intended to solicit for additional funds of those who have not already placed their names on the subscription book. Should this be done the offering will certainly aggregate $25,000 or more.—San Francisco Post.

Removal.

Messrs. F. Davis & Co., of the Belvidere Restaurant, Yates street, have secured the entire upper flat of the Moody block, and will remove their restaurant business up stairs, over the present premises. The new premises will be fitted up in an elegant manner, and when completed will present a first-class appearance throughout. The restaurant will be closed for ten days during removal.

The "C" Battery.

From Ottawa it is reported that Sir A. P. Caron has decided upon making the "C" battery a permanent one in order to guard against desertion. The Imperial authorities have been asked to recommend one hundred men of the British reserve to form the nucleus of the battery. The fact that these men are army pensioners it is thought will be sufficient to retain them to the Canadian service.

Busy as a Bee.

We are always busy as a B, but customers delight to C. Leave breakfast, dinner, lunch or T, drop in and buy, and save a V, we've everything from A to Z. Our hive is full of busy B's, he buys who once our bargains C's, we like competitors to T's, and try to live a life of E's. A. GILMORE, Clothier and Hatter, Johnson street.

The Mexico.

A San Francisco dispatch of the 27th inst. says an examination of the steamer Mexico, in dock, shows that about 150 feet of her keel, fore and aft, will have to be replaced. The midship section is uninjured. Her forefoot, a little above the garboard streak, will be renewed, and new planking put in that portion of her bottom damaged by rocks. The repairs will occupy a week.

We have several FIRST CLASS BUILDING LOTS for sale, and those wishing to invest in Victoria should first call on us. PICKERING & Co., Fort street, box 634.

Capt. Bill Moore's Trip.

Capt. Wm. Moore, of Victoria, (says the Juneau Free Press) passed up on the steamer Ancon to Chilkoot this week with a party of seven men to survey and locate a route for a trail from Chilkoot to the Yukon river; he will first look over the route and if it is found not practicable he will return by way of the Takou pass. He also has two partners that will start, one from Fort Wrangel, to go up the Stickeen river to Taltan, cross over the range to the head of the Hodelinko or Lewis rivers, thence down to the Yukon; the third party will switch off somewhere on the Stickeen and look over a new route; they will establish a trail for pack animals and will push it through this summer if possible. We understand that the Canadian Government is putting up all the money for the expenses of the survey and building the trail. We think the United States is making a grand mistake in allowing any foreign government to come into our territory to build public highways and control the trade of the gold fields of the Northwest and the Yukon country. Our government should at least be at the expense of building the trail to the National boundary and there give men a chance to establish a trading post, as the far trade from the interior would be enormous if such a post was established, and the revenue derived would doubly pay for the trail every year. The fare, instead of going down the Yukon or to foreign countries, would pass out by this route and a large proportion would be sold in American ports.

Another Advance.

It is reported that the C. P. R. Co.'s Land department has again advanced the price of the company's unsold lots at Vancouver. The demand of late has been brisk, especially in the east, for business and suburban property. A block of 120 acres was sold a few days since to a Toronto syndicate, in the subdivision of lot 264 A. This block will be chopped, logged and burned and streets opened up prior to offering the lots for sale. Montreal dealers in real estate, as well as those of Toronto, have also made several heavy purchases. The arrival and departure of trains on the wharf, as well as the vessels lying at the company's wharves and elsewhere in the harbor, gives the city quite a metropolitan appearance. Buildings are still going on in every direction. It is conceded on all hands that Vancouver to-day is the second city in point of population in this province.

Enjoy Life.

What a truly beautiful world we live in! Nature gives us grandeur of mountains, glens and oceans, and thousands of means of enjoyment. We can desire no better when in perfect health; but how often majority of people feel like giving it up disheartened, discouraged and worn out with disease, when there is no occasion for this feeling, as every sufferer can easily obtain satisfactory proof, that Green's August Flower, will make them free from disease, as when born. Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint are the direct causes of seventy-five per cent. of such maladies as Biliousness, Indigestion, Sick Headache, Costiveness, Nervous Prostration, Dizziness of the Head, Palpitation of the Heart, and other distressing symptoms. Three doses of August Flower will prove its wonderful effect. Sample bottle 10c. Try it.

To Be Competitors.

The Pacific Coast Steamship Company has filed a bond with the collector of the port of San Francisco for $100,000, which will be forwarded for the approval of the Department of Washington. If accepted the company will be authorized to carry goods in bond by way of Puget Sound and the Canadian roads and compete for the tea and rice trades, the duties to be paid at any eastern custom house.

For the East.

The Elder brought the following freight to go east via the C. P. R.: For Minneapolis, 23,830 pounds of beans, and for Omaha 41,000 pounds; for Boston there were 75,000 pounds of wool, valued at $14,000; for Gloucester, Mass., 75 barrels of salmon valued at $713.

At the Sixty-first Annual General Meeting of the STANDARD Life Assurance Co.

Held at Edinburgh on Tuesday, the 26th of April, 1887, the following Results for the Year ended 15th November, 1886, were reported:

2593 New Proposals for Life Assurance were received during the year for	$ 6,605,660
2293 Proposals were Accepted, assuring	$ 5,734,729
The Total Existing Assurances in force at November 15, 1886, amounted to	$29,507,745
The Claims by Death or Matured Endowments which arose during the year amounted, including Bonus Additions, to	$ 2,937,086
The Annual Revenue amounted, at 15th Nov., 1886, to	$ 4,403,150
The Accumulated Funds at the same date amounted to	$32,589,268
Being an Increase during the year of	$ 503,461

The foregoing interesting facts in connection with the operations of the Standard Life Assurance Company during 1886 commend themselves not only to the numerous body of policy holders within the provinces, but to those who contemplate assurance. The enormous financial strength of this old established institution; the liberal conditions of its Policies; the large periodical distribution in bonuses to its Policy holders, and the numerous facilities afforded for assurance both by Endowment or Whole Life Assurance, all combine in placing the Standard in the first rank of Life Assurance Companies.

The Local Board of Directors at Victoria have full power to accept Proposals, issue Policies, and settle claims. Full particulars and rates for Assurance can be procured from the Agents and Secretaries to the Board.
